All Wheel Drive vs. 4 Wheel Drive: Which is Right for You?

Both All Wheel Drive (AWD) and 4 Wheel Drive (4WD) rotate all four wheels at the same time, so what's the difference and which is right for you? AWD and 4WD have two types - full-time and part-time. With full-time, all four wheels are driven all the time, whereas with part-time AWD, all four wheels are engaged when additional traction is needed or when the driver selects to change modes. Simply put, the difference between AWD and 4WD is that 4WD is better equipped to handle extreme terrain, and is therefore most often found on trucks and large SUVs. So which is for you? AWD can be found on the widest range of vehicles with the least amount of compromises to the ride and fuel economy. 4WD is more suitable if you drive in remote areas, extreme conditions, or go off-roading frequently. Whichever matches your situation best is the better choice for you! Source

Celebrating Women in Science: Grace Hopper

Grace Hopper (1906-1992) was a computer scientist and admiral in the United States Navy. Her achievements include being a part of the Harvard Mark I programming team, inventing the first programming languages, popularizing the term "debugging," and serving in the U.S. Navy Reserve during WWII. She was a pioneer in her field and is considered the mother of computing, working on projects that others thought impossible. It was uncommon for women to be doing her kind of work in the 50s and 60s, but we have her to thank for starting the work that got computers to where they are today. Source

Glamping: Where Nature Meets Luxury

Gone are the days of pitching a tent in the wilderness - what's known as camping. The new trend is "Glamping," a more glamorous take on spending time in nature. With tents that come with beds and furnishings, and even some with bathrooms, "Glampgrounds" provide the great outdoors without giving up on some basic creature comforts. Ready to book your getaway? You can find available spaces here: https://www.glamping.com/

On the Go... Breakfast Recipes

Late to work does not mean skipping breakfast. Whether you like sweet or savory, hot or cold - here are some ideas to get you going! Toast 2 multi-grain waffles and scramble 2 eggs in the microwave with some cheese for 1 minute. Voila! Add the eggs between the waffles and wrap in 2 paper towels to eat on the go!
